

MRWED NOW TRAINING IN AFRICA

March 27, 2007: MRWED Principal and founder, Marc Ratcliffe has returned from Tanzania after delivering a two week training package for international gold mining company RESOLUTE. This marks the beginning of an on going training arrangement between the two businesses.

Marc Ratcliffe developed and presented a modified training and assessment course for the African employees of RESOLUTE at The Golden Pride mine, located in Tanzania, East Africa, 750km north-west of the port of Dar es Salaam. RESOLUTE has a continued commitment to education and training of employees and the local community as well as a social conscience towards environmental factors.

Chris Hillman, OHS and Training Manager for RESOLUTE at the Golden Pride Mine said "We chose MRWED to conduct the training because we wanted a service provider that had experience in delivering training sessions Internationally, who could adjust their content and delivery methods to suit the cultural differences between Australia and Tanzania and who could adapt to the language and literacy issues here".

As one of Australia's leading providers of the Training and Assessment package MRWED is expanding its training courses off shore. Having already had success providing training in North America and Asia the expansion into Africa is one more step towards Marc Ratcliffe's goal of providing quality Australian Standards training to a world market.

The main focus of the course was planning and delivering training for local trainers' whether it be in security, environmental rejuvenation, exploration, geology, processing, maintenance or First Aid/ Emergency Response. The course provided Marc Ratcliffe the opportunity to brush up on his Swahili, learning terms of reference and local expressions to bond with students.

"The student took their studies extremely serious. They saw it as a way to further their education as well as repaying the faith RESOLUTE had invested in them. I am impressed with their development and their commitment to Australian Standards, this is a project that I am very proud to be a part of" said Mr Ratcliffe.

MRWED will issue the Tanzanian students with Statements of Attainment for current levels of success. Marc Ratcliffe will return to Tanzania in July 2007 to provide students with an opportunity to continue their studies in order to complete the Australian Nationally Recognised Certificate IV in Training and Assessment.

"It's important for us to train our staff to Australian Standards so as to develop each individual's career path and personal progression. All our site systems and standards are based on the Australian levels so it is important that we train to the same level. There are no similar training institutions in Tanzania. MRWED helped to facilitate this by providing a complete package, Tailor made to suit the cultural and language and literacy issues including the delivery and assessment of the training sessions." said Mr. Hillman, of RESOLUTE.
